

Baroque style in clothes

<https://beauty-en.htgetrid.com/>

Baroque style is considered one of the most striking and luxurious. It combines theatricality of outfits and great attention to detail. This style is often called too defiant and lush. But if such pomp does not scare you, then you will be interested to hear that some elements of the Baroque are now in fashion.

History of style

Baroque style has a very long history. In Europe, he appeared at the turn of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. This style was relevant not only in fashion, but also in music, architecture, history and literature. But today it will be about the manifestation of this magnificent and luxurious style in clothes.

The 17th century in fashion was distinguished by lush multi-layered dresses. Girls from different nationalities emphasized their differences with bright outfits corresponding to their nationality. So, for example, fluffy dresses with long colorful skirts and voluminous collars around the neck were popular with Spaniards. European fashion was more restrained and was characterized by dresses from fabrics of dark colors.

The dresses of high-ranking ladies at this time were also mainly performed in baroque style. They were also distinguished by the presence of fluffy multi-layer skirts and voluminous sleeves. In the dresses of noble ladies, stiff Spanish collars were replaced with more refined, made of linen or fine lace. Even the presence of a shallow neckline, which had to be supplemented with precious jewelries, for example, with natural pearl threads, was allowed.

A little later, during the time of Louis XIV, the Baroque style slightly changed visually. The style of dresses became softer, low-waist dresses that made the girls of that time feel more comfortable came into fashion. In the past, there were uncomfortable corsets that interfere with normal movement and breathing.

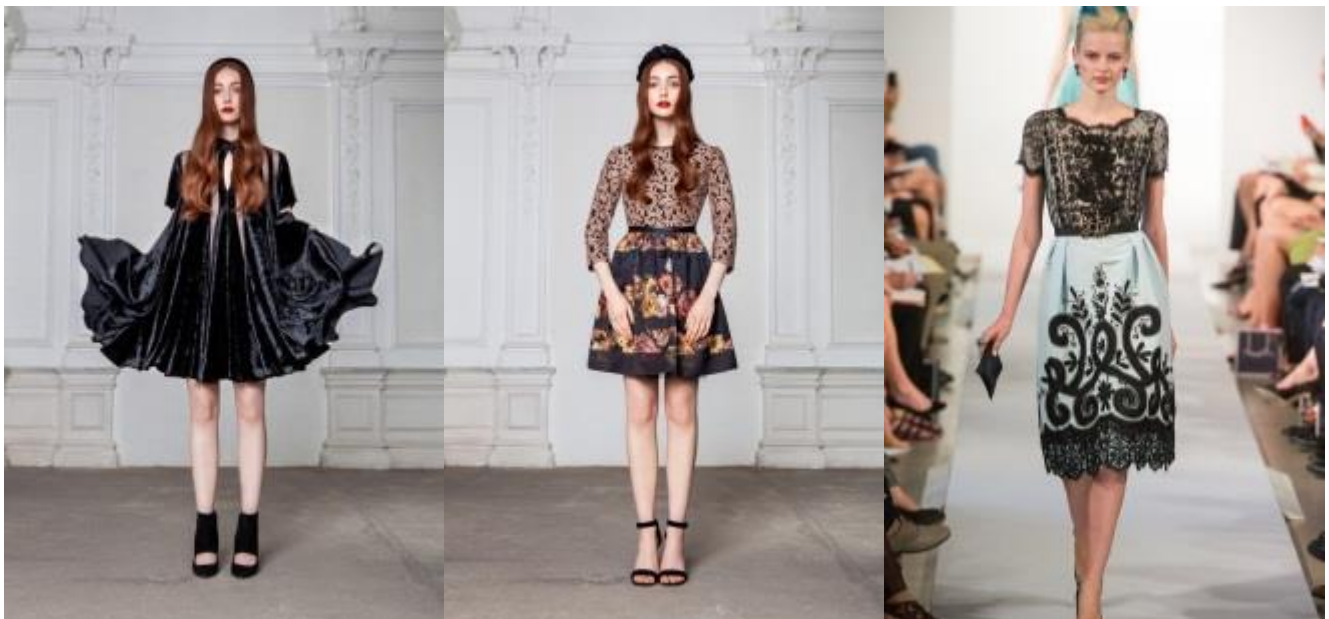

At the same time, dresses were decorated with precious stones and colored ribbons. More open décolleté and dresses with open shoulders have become permissible.

Style in modern fashion

In modern clothing, the Baroque style retained only certain features of what was characteristic of it in the seventeenth century. This style inspires many modern designers. Therefore, many modern collections are full of luxurious expensive details. Often used in such expensive fabrics as velvet and brocade, as well as a rich decor with gold threads.

Modern outfits with baroque elements add to the image of any girl elegance and aristocracy. In this way, you can definitely feel like a young princess.

However, baroque is not necessarily an addition to the evening style. Some of its elements may even be present in everyday images. You can add a touch of originality to even the simplest image using simple lace gloves or eye-catching baroque embellishments.

Characteristic for this style are combinations of colors such as black, gold, red, purple and white. The right color combination can make the image play with new colors.

In order for a bow in a baroque style to look really impressive, you should select only quality items. Ideally, the outfit should be the creation of the hands of a famous designer who is really able to translate his ideas into reality. The fact is that no luxurious and aristocratic bow can not consist of things made of cheap fabrics.

Baroque evening dress will conquer any man. And to create a business bow, it is possible to use a high skinny skirt, complemented by a luxurious blouse with puffy sleeves.

Characteristics

In addition to very high-quality fabrics, the Baroque style is distinguished by other elements. In the seventeenth century, women's dresses were lush. The layering of skirts has been preserved to this day. Dresses consisting of several layers of lightweight fabric look very impressive.

Another feature of this style is a combination of two contrasting colors. Ladies' dresses from the seventeenth century were distinguished by a combination of a lighter or darker bottom with a contrasting top.

Additionally, the dresses were complemented with various decorative elements: ruffles, ruffles, lace bets. They also gave the female side pomp. Now such a rich decor also remains relevant. These dresses are perfect for both slim girls and ladies with curvaceous shapes.

In the seventeenth century, the cult of femininity was still preserved. Dresses should maximally emphasize the beauty of the figure. For this purpose, slimming corsets were used in combination with puffy skirts and an abundance of decor in the decollete area. Very often the dresses were complemented by long trains. Loops could be made of thick fabric, or translucent lace.

Another important element of the image in the Baroque style - spectacular shoes. They are usually sewn from genuine leather, brocade or even velvet. Allocated them and unusual pointed sock. Heels in such shoes also often differed an unusual form and coloring. From above, such shoes were decorated with ribbons and bright-colored buckles, which also added to the shoes of originality.

Spring-Summer season trends

Baroque clothing is still up to date this season. Let's look at the fashionable details that are worth paying attention to when choosing these outfits.

Young girls with a romantic kind will love dresses made of their rich color velvet with a full skirt. Also in the Baroque style and create exquisite lace dresses, which compel attention to the fragile female figure at a glance.

In the trend this season and spectacular seventeenth century style collars. This voluminous collar is decorated with satin ribbons, rich in embroidery or jewels.

But not only dresses are created in the Baroque style. Modern designers with gilded embroidery can complement even jeans, and it will look quite appropriate. Of course, these pants will be expensive and not all will suit.

If you are not ready to choose such a spectacular dress or jeans for yourself, then you can opt for bright and remarkable baroque jewelry. It can be long necklaces of exquisite pearls or other pebbles, luxurious necklaces, or massive earrings. Very often, this style is used and the appropriate shoes, stylized fashion of the seventeenth century.

Properly chosen outfits in the style of modern baroque are suitable for spectacular exits and romantic dates. Such a bright outfit will help any girl emphasize her individuality and sexuality. Therefore, if you are not afraid to attract the attention of others, feel free to choose a luxurious outfit in the Baroque style and amaze those around you with its beauty and unusual taste.

